

Which of the following will be most critical to your quality of life in the future?

Other:
Access to locally grown food
Making choices that favor residents' quality of life over further increases in tourism. Manitou is deteriorating as a place to live (as opposed to visit). We need to roll back the "more tourist at all costs" philosophy that's been driving our governing decisions.
Hard to pick only 3! "Sense of community" and/or "Neighborhood quality/character" should also be a priority.
"Community" would seem to be something that evolves organically, though perhaps the city might foster things that a community would endear such as sound infrastructure. Going for the gold, a lovely infrastructure with well maintained parks and a lovely creek walk.
Responsible and sensible management of The Incline usage. Advocate for daily limits on users.
By quality, I refer to stable infrastructure, maintenance of streets, water mains, curbs, sidewalks, tree removal and maintenance.
